Description: This course examines business problems that arise from conflicts between shareholders, managers, and occasionally other groups such as bondholders, labor, and government regulators. Most of these conflicts lead to either a market-based or regulation-based response that changes the shape of the company involved. Topics include choices of organizational form, mergers and acquisitions, spinoffs and other equity restructuring, private equity, takeover defenses, liability restructuring under financial distress, institutional investors, shareholder activism, and the value of corporate voting and control. Many topics are studied within an agency cost framework, which has become the standard paradigm for analyzing financial contracting and regulation. Readings will be drawn from textbooks and academic journals, and many classes will involve case studies of prominent companies challenged by financial and governance problems.

Prerequisites: This is an advanced course that assumes students are familiar with the concepts of corporate law and/or corporate finance. Law students should have completed at least one semester of the basic Corporations course and done well. Stern students should have already taken Corporate Finance and done well. Further knowledge about capital markets would be helpful for all students, whether through work experience or courses such as Securities Regulation (Law School), Investment Banking, or Mergers and Acquisitions (Stern School).

Additional readings: Along with readings assigned from the textbooks, I will assign articles from academic journals and the news media. These readings may be downloaded from the NYU Classes website.

Lectures: I do not record class sessions for later on-line viewing, except for special cases such as religious holidays when large numbers of students may be absent.

Course requirements: The course will have an optional in-class exam and a mandatory take-home final exam. The in-class exam will be given in March prior to spring break and will consist of a series of short essay questions. If you decide to take this exam, it will count as 50% of your grade. The take-home exam will be distributed by mid-April and will be due at the end. of the May exam period. The exam will have eight essay questions of 500 words length. You may answer three of the eight essay questions and have the take-home count as 50% of your grade, or if you choose not to take the in-class exam, you would answer six of the eight questions and have the take-home count as 100% of your grade. However, students will not be permitted to do extra take-home exam questions to nullify disappointing scores received on the in-class exam.

Academic calendar: We follow the Stern School academic calendar and have 26 class meetings (including the in-class midterm exam). The Stern calendar generally tracks the university calendar more closely than does the Law School’s calendar. Our first day of class is Monday, February 1. There is no assignment to be done in advance of the first class. The final class is Monday, May 9. There is no class on the Presidents’ Day holiday (Monday, February 15), and no “legislative Monday” makeup day will occur. We also have no class during Spring break week on Monday, March 14, and Wednesday, March 16. Though our last class takes place during the Law School exam period, past experience indicates that the inconvenience to most Law School students should be minimal.
